Araluen Creek Restoration Project

The Araluen Creek Restoration Project is funded by the Bushfire Community Recovery and Resilience Fund through the joint Commonwealth/State Disaster Recovery Funding.

The project aims to deliver in stream works that will support the creek and its environs into the future.

The project will also raise community awareness of the fragility of the catchment and the vital importance of water quality for residential and agricultural purpose with a focus on community resilience and the recovery and repair of the environment.

Response to the project has been outstanding with 12 landholders participating. Such a positive response provides the opportunity to achieve effective and sustainable outcomes.

Initial site assessments have been completed and Lyall Bogie from Soil Conservation Service is currently working on design and construction components of the project. Having this information means we can move onto the next phase of the project with further environmental assessment to be conducting over the coming week, in line with the works proposed.
